OSH in Modular Integrated Construction (MiC)

Date and Time : 25th May, 2019 (Saturday), 14:00-16:00
Venue : MiC Display Centre, Construction Industry Council – Zero Carbon Building, 8 Sheung Yuet Road, Kowloon Bay, Hong Kong

Highlights of the Visit :

The first Modular Integrated Construction (MiC) Demonstration Project in Hong Kong was completed a months ago. The two-storey building was constructed using MiC approach which enabled 70% of the project to be constructed off-site, at a factory in Mainland China. The modules were fully decked out with components from electrical wiring to fixtures, fittings and even wallpaper, and were then delivered and installed on-site. The contractor applied the Integrated Digital Project Delivery (IDPD) Scheme – a platform to tie all of the digital tools together, from planning to facilities management, to maximize efficiencies. In addition to 30% reduction in production time, the factory manufacturing process enabled better quality control, generated less waste, created fewer disturbances on site, and more importantly, provided workers with an indoor environment which enabled them to carry out their duties safely, and protected them from inclement weather. Through the adoption of IDPD, common challenges on health and safety were also overcome. MiC is changing the ways we approach health and safety issues in construction. The event will surely introduce the visitors to various new OSH tactics in MiC.
